'Swan Song' By Barkley Tonight

CHICAGO, July 23 — (UP) — Vice President Alben W. Barkley turned up today for his political Swan song.

The Democrats' grand old man intended to go back home to Kentucky after he withdrew from the race for the Presidential nomination.

But he changed his mind, at the urging of party leaders, and agreed to deliver one of his famous "orations" to the Democratic National Convention tonight.

The 74-year-old Veep had planned to address the convention along with the other delegates. But he had hoped his term would come a little later in the week—when the presidential nominee was called in for an acceptance speech.

That dream collapsed when labor leaders turned thumbs down on Barkley earlier this week. They told him bluntly he was too old, and it just about broke his heart.

But Barkley could take some comfort from the knowledge that the Democrats he has served so long and faithfully still love him—even if they aren't going to reward him with the top spot on their ticket.

Convention delegates cheered lustily last night when party chairman Frank E. McKinney announced that he had personally persuaded Barkley to speak to the convention tonight.

CABINET POST IS POSSIBILITY FOR SCHRICKER

ELECTION OF STEVENSON AS PRESIDENT COULD MEAN TOP JOB

INDIANAPOLIS, July 23.—(UP)—Gov. Henry F. Schricker's nomination of Gov. Adlai Stevenson for Democratic presidential candidate conceivably could lead to a cabinet post for the Indiana governor.

Statehouse Democrats speculated that Schricker's nominating speech will at least point up a "neighborly" friendship between the two. They added Schricker obviously is not trying to gain personal favor.

But a cabinet post could well be the outcome if Stevenson is elected. They argued it would not be difficult for Schricker to accept because his election as U. S. senator, if it occurs, will assure that a Democrat will replace Republican Sen. William E. Jenner.

The speculation, assuming Stevenson the presidential winner, went this way:

Schricker and the Illinois governor are such good personal and political friends that Schricker would deem it a pleasure to campaign alongside Stevenson. Most of all, Schricker wants to unseat Jenner.

If he does and if Stevenson then wants Schricker in his cabinet—as secretary of interior, for example—Schricker could resign the Senate seat soon after being sworn in on Jan. 3.

Since Schricker could not serve as governor while a member of Congress, Lt. Gov. John A. Watkins would finish his gubernatorial term—until Jan. 12—and could appoint a Hoosier Democrat to the Senate vacancy. That person would serve two years until the next general election when Hoosiers would elect a short-term, four-year senator.

The speculation was not limited to a cabinet post. Some of Schricker's political friends said his banking experience might qualify him for a Reconstruction Finance Corporation post or "his unquestionable integrity might fit well into the atomic energy program."

Arthur Campbell, the governor's executive secretary, admitted the possibility of such turn of events but added the governor, as of now, is "just running for the Senate."

Campbell said the two governors exchanged telephone calls numerous times during their reigns and "developed a very close friendship." He said they "exchanged ideas" on similar state problems.

Last spring, Schricker spent a weekend as Stevenson's guest in Springfield, Ill. They previously conferred on such projects as the Chicago expressway in the Hammond area, a bridge between the two states over the Wabash river and the Great Lakes waterways.

Seven Die In Plane Crash

LAC DU BONNET, Man., July 23 (UP) — A four-engine Norseman aircraft of the Manitoba air services crashed about 200 miles north of here last night and authorities said today there was no sign of survivors. Seven persons were aboard the plane.

A Canadian Air Force helicopter from Rivers, Man., was ordered to leave at daybreak today for the crash area 25 miles north of Bernes river.

The Norseman was owned and operated by the Manitoba air services. Names of the seven men aboard the plane were not disclosed.

The aircraft's disappearance had been reported to the air force late yesterday but little fear was held then that it had crashed. The Air Force thought it more likely the plane had set down on one of the many lakes in the far north.

The nature of the Norseman's flight at the time of the crash was not immediately revealed.

SEOUL, Korea, July 23—(UP)—Two waves of 100 Allied planes smashed a Communist troop and supply center south of Won San today in another crushing aerial assault on "ripe" enemy targets.

Communist anti-aircraft fire was severe, returning pilots said.

Demos To Hear Truman Friday

CHICAGO, July 23.—(UP)—President Truman will speak to the Democratic convention Friday night, party officials said today.

Because the convention is now running behind schedule, the chief executive, who had planned to fly from Washington Thursday, will postpone his trip for 24 hours.

According to the latest timetable worked out by Chairman Frank E. McKinney, the President was expected here sometime Friday. He will dine at the Saddle and Siroin Club, adjoining the convention hall, with McKinney, the new presidential nominee and a small group of high party figures.

He will wait at the Stockyards Inn until the vice presidential nominee is chosen, then go to the convention hall itself to hear the acceptance speeches before making his own address sometime Friday night. He will spend the night at the Blackstone Hotel.

Saturday morning the President planned tentatively to fly to Independence, Mo., where he will remain until the Missouri Democratic primary Aug. 5.

NOTICE

There will be a special meeting of the city council at 8:00 this evening at the city hall.

S. A. NATIONS WILL RECEIVE U.S. ARMS AID

FIRST SHIPMENT TO BE SENT FROM NEW YORK FRIDAY

WASHINGTON, July 23 — (UP)— The first shipment of military equipment to Latin American Nations under the mutual defense assistance program will leave New York Friday, the Defense Department announced today.

The shipment to Ecuador, Peru and Colombia will include motor vehicles, various types of small arms and ammunition, and spare parts for aircraft and naval vessels.

The Defense Department said shipments probably will be started soon to other Latin American countries which have negotiated military assistance agreements under the Mutual Security Act—Cuba, Chile, Brazil and Uruguay. Brazil and Uruguay have not yet ratified the agreement.

Purpose of the military aid program to Latin American countries is to strengthen the Western Hemisphere's defense in event of emergency, the department said.

The type of equipment provided will assist the Latin American countries to perform such defense missions as protection of sea lanes and lines of communication and defense of strategic areas in the Hemisphere against sea and air attack, the announcement said.

The department said in a statement that the program gives "added reality" to the resolution on "any cooperation approved here in 1951 at a meeting of foreign ministers and to the 'Important planning for Hemisphere defense being carried on by the inter-American defense board.'"

"The assistance provided by the United States on terms and conditions fully and freely negotiated will contribute to the common security of the entire Western Hemisphere," the statement said.

CHICAGO, July 23.—(INS)—Frank M. McHale, veteran Indiana member of the Democratic National Committee, said today that the Democratic party has taken a definite trend toward conservatism.

McHale cited what he called the "probable nomination of Gov. Adlai Stevenson for president and the probable nomination of a southerner for vice-president" and the convention's treatment of the civil rights issue as indications of conservatism.

McHale said:

"Stevenson is a man with his feet on the ground and his nomination will be a severe blow to such radicals as Senator Estes Kefauver and Averell Harriman who will do anything the arrogant labor leaders tell them to do just for votes."

"These radical leaders are on (Continued on Page Two)"

STEVENSON GAINING IN DEMO RACE

GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS MAY BE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE

Chairman Devers ruled this afternoon that the delegates from Virginia, South Carolina and Louisiana won't be permitted to vote in the convention because they refused to sign the so-called loyalty pledge.

The convention adopted the Credentials committee report by a voice vote that before voting any delegation must adopt the loyalty pledge.

CHICAGO, July 23.—(UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson piled up new support for the Democratic presidential nomination today as party platform writers hammered out a civil rights compromise head off a convention floor fight.

Rival candidates were trying desperately to organize a "stop Stevenson" coalition, but so far with no success. Averell Harriman was expected to decide soon whether he will drop out of the race and throw his support to Sen. Estes Kefauver in an effort to stem the Stevenson tide.

Party moderates who favor Stevenson seemed to be gaining the upper hand at the convention after two days of bitter North-South dispute. The civil rights compromise came on the heels of conciliatory gestures toward the South in the "loyalty pledge" row.

The final showdowns on both the platform and the "loyalty pledge" issues will come at today's convention sessions and while peace appeared to be breaking out, party leaders kept their fingers crossed.

A 19-member platform drafting subcommittee which locked itself in a smoke-filled room at 8:15 p. m. CDT last night emerged shortly before 6 a. m. with a civil rights plank which had been accepted by both Sen. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, spokesman for the northern "Fair Dealers," and Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, representing the southerners.

Text of the civil rights plank was not immediately made public, but Lehman called it an improvement over the 1948 party pledge, and said "it doesn't look to me as if there will be a fight on the floor" when the platform comes up for adoption at tonight's convention session.

Key to the compromise, it was learned, was Lehman's agreement to give up his fight to have the civil rights plank include a clause binding the party to end the Senate filibuster, which the South traditionally has used to kill civil rights legislation.

NEW BOOKS

The Greencastle Public Library announces the addition of a valuable new set of books in the Children's Department. It is the "Democracy Series," a set of nine volumes, edited by Prudence Cutright and W. W. Charters, written for the education of children in the American way of life. They have been planned to help children appreciate the way and ideals of democracy, and to put them into practice in their daily lives.

To understand democracy, children must know what it is and how it works. The "Democracy Series" emphasizes five important characteristics as a way of life. These are:

1. Respect for the dignity of the individual.
2. Broad opportunity for the individual.

3. Economic and social security.
4. Freedom to seek the truth.
5. Freedom of speech and press.
6. Universal education.
7. Majority rule, minority rights.
8. Justice for the common man.
9. Freedom of religion.

10. Respect for the rights of private property.
11. Individual responsibility as a citizen of a democracy.
12. Development of the social virtues.

13. Intellectual honesty.
14. Living together as good neighbors.

15. World understanding and co-operation with other nations.

All these characteristics are not presented in each book, but all are covered in the entire series. The material is adapted for each grade level and covers grades one through eight. The nine titles are:

School Friends, Let's Take Turns, Enjoying Our Land, Your Land and Mine, Toward Freedom, Pioneering in Democracy, The Way of Democracy, The Growth of Democracy, and Working for Democracy.

Police said they were holding Emmett Johns, 17, a negro, under guard at a hospital where he was being treated for an arm wound. He was charged with murder.

Johns was caught a few blocks from the shooting scene when he knocked at the door of a home to ask for aid for his wound.

It was the first official announcement since Sunday, when her health was reported improved.

Strike Closes Artillery Plant

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(UP)—The 52-day steel strike hit at the heart of the defense program today as worried White House officials exerted new pressure on industry and union leaders to negotiate an agreement.

Acting Defense Mobilizer John A. Steegman was in almost constant communication by telephone with both sides in further attempts to find some break in the completely deadlocked dispute.

As steelmen struggled for resumption of collective bargaining, the prolonged nationwide walkout of 600,000 CIO steelworkers had its first drastic effects on defense production.

The army announced the shutdown of the nation's largest artillery shell plant—the Chevrolet shell plant at St. Louis. Defense officials predicted the list of defense facilities forced to close down for lack of steel would grow rapidly.

Until now they said, the strike has primarily hurt the civilian economy, forcing a halt in production of automobiles and other consumer goods and causing layoffs of workers not directly in the steel industry. The strike's effect on defense production was delayed due to the large stockpile of steel when the walkout started June 2.

The magazine Iron Age said in this week's issue that there was not "a ray of hope" for quick settlement of the strike, although differences between the industry and union were "paper-thin."

The magazine listed these effects of "the worst steel strike in history":

1. Steel production losses will total 17,000,000 tons by the end of this week.

2. Unemployment is nearly 2,000,000, including the 600,000 steelworkers.

3. The average wage loss for each steelworker is about $600.

4. Total loss to the country so far is $4,000,000,000.

Steelmen vainly prodded industry leaders and union President Philip Murray yesterday, failing to wring the slightest concession for either side. Steelmen stood ready to call on the parties to get together again, the moment he saw any possibility of productive talks.

The deadlock centered on a demand by the industry that the new agreement provide a 15-day period at the start of the contract for workers to "escape" from the union. Officials believe the parties are close enough on wages and even the crucial union shop issue so that a settlement would come quickly if the "escape" clause plan could be worked out.

The steel companies have offered a 16-cent hourly increase, 5.4 cents in fringe benefits and a union security clause that would require new workers to sign a union card but allow them to leave the union within the first 30 days.

While the White House reported President Truman has no immediate plans to step directly into the dispute, officials worked behind the scenes on a possible move to seize some steel plants for defense production. The limited seizure would be carried out under the Selective Service Act, which allows the government to take over any mill that "fails or refuses" to produce on direct defense orders.

Guards Freed By Prison Rioters

BOSTON, July 23.—(UP)—Forty rioting convicts released two guards they had held as hostages early today and gave up their stronghold in a steaming lift of 147-year-old Charlestown state prison.

A prison official said guards Cornelius Horgan, 42, and John Kerivan, 45, looked "cool, calm and collected" as they walked from the building where the convicts had barricaded themselves yesterday.

Drunk on stolen prison alcohol, the prisoners followed the lead of two hardened killers and set several fires in the ancient prison before seizing the guards and holding up in the second floor of the industrial building.

During the night, correction officials held a second conference with the embattled rioters but they gave out no statement and it was not known whether any promises were made. The prisoners had demanded "no reprisals" and an airing of their bill of complaints on prison conditions.

State and city police shelled the building with tear gas shortly after the riot began but ceased fire when an angry convict threatened to decapitate one of the hostages.

"Throw one more bomb up here and we'll cut his head off," the convict shouted. "Go ahead and throw one more."

The rioters warned Warden John J. O'Brien the hostages would not be released until he published in Boston newspapers a promise of "no reprisals" and a list of their complaints.

"Then the public can make up its mind and we'll trade hostages for promises of no reprisals and other improvements," a convict said.

O'Brien and State Correction Commissioner Maxwell B. Grossman went into the loft, where underwear and license plates are made, to receive the ultimatum from the convicts, who were flashing knives.

"How can you expect me to do a thing like that?" O'Brien asked. "If I did anything like that I would be a jellyfish."

Grossman said O'Brien had "full charge" of the prison and he would support him "one thousand percent."

O'Brien said that 595 other inmates of the prison did not participate in the riot and remained in their cells.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—

(INS)—Some military officials predicted today that more defense plants may have to close unless the steel strike—now 52 days old—is settled soon.

The forecast was made in the wake of Army Secretary Pace's announcement that the Chevrolet plant, at St. Louis, the nation's largest shell-making factory, was forced to close because of a steel shortage.

LEBANON, Ind., July 23.—(UP)—Seventeen persons were arrested and gambling equipment confiscated in a state police pre-dawn gambling raid of the Farm Club today.

Police said Lasky Farb, owner of the club, was charged with keeping a gaming house. The other sixteen, including many out-of-staters, were charged with visiting a gambling house.

Among equipment confiscated in the raid—led by state police Detective Sgt. Edwin Schroeder—were dice tables, a roulette wheel, 10,000 poker chips and decks of cards.

Those arrested were taken to Boone county jail and later released on bond. No trial dates were set.

LOSS SET AT $20,000 IN BLAZE ON FARM

CRAWFORDSVILLE, July 23.—Fire believed to have been caused by combustion in new hay destroyed 6,000 bales of hay, 600 bushels of oats, a large quantity of corn and several farming implements at the G. R. Pitman farm, southwest of here. The loss was estimated at $20,000.

Fire companies from Veedersburg, Newton and Hillsboro saved nearby buildings.

LOOK FOR WORMS

Evergreens, trees and shrubs should be checked for bagworms as soon as possible. These well-camouflaged worms live in spindle-shaped silken bags adorned with leaves and twigs from the plant and feed voraciously, stripping the leaves from the trees upon which they feed.

Although the severe winter of 1950 greatly reduced the bagworm population, reports of injury are being received by D. L. Schuder, entomologist at the Purdue University agricultural experiment station. He suggests that infested trees be sprayed at once since the worms become more difficult to kill as they near maturity.

Apply six teaspoonful of 40 per cent toxaphene wettable powder per gallon of water. Toxaphene is also available in emulsion forms and should be used according to the manufacturer's directions on the package. Lead arsenate is also effective but will have to be used in stronger concentrations since the worms are over half grown. Use nine teaspoonful per gallon of water.

Details of bagworm control are given in Purdue Extension Mimeo E-27, available from the county agent's office.

FARMING Comments

KENNETH HARRIS
County Agent

It's good to be back after a couple of weeks vacation. We leisurely motored westward where there is one of the best crop prospects in many years. With the exception of a couple of dry spots in Montana and Colorado, the range country as well as the corn country of the middle west has had ample rain so the crop and pasture conditions really look promising.

Last Friday Marion Sears with the help of Bill McElroy harvested our 1952 Oat Variety and Nitrogen Fertilizer Demonstration on the Sears farm in Marion township where we had seven different varieties of oats growing in competition with one another in definite strips to determine the yielding ability of these various varieties. Then we had alongside a fertilizer demonstration, trying to determine the value of various applications of nitrogen in addition to the customary balanced fertilizer used by most farmers on their oats.

This plot was seeded on the average soil on the Sears farm and altho the yields are not particularly high the comparisons are very interesting. The Clinton 59 variety was the leading producer with a yield of 33 bushels per acre. It was closely followed by the Benton variety at a 30 bushel yield. Other varieties with their yields were as follows—Missouri 205, 29 bushels per acre; Ajax, 27 bushels per acre; LaSalle & Nemaha, 25 bushels per acre and last was the Columbia variety with 23 bushels per acre.

These oats were seeded on April 9, using 200 pounds of 3-12-12 fertilizer per acre.

In the fertilizer demonstration, a basic application of 240 pounds per acre of 4-15-15 was applied. Where no nitrogen was used the yield was 36 bushels per acre using the Clinton 59 variety that was produced on the Sears farm. When 3% nitrogen or 7½ pounds of nitrogen per acre was added the yield was increased to 42 bushels per acre. With the addition of 6% nitrogen or approximately 15 pounds of basic nitrogen per acre the yield was increased to 49 bushels, and finally with 12% nitrogen or a balanced fertilizer of 12-15-15 the yield was increased to 57 bushels per acre.

This interesting comparison shows us that the application of 240 pounds of the 12-15-15 fertilizer increased the yield from 33 bushels per acre to 57 bushels per acre over the use of 200 pounds of 3-12-12 fertilizer, which is the customary application on many Putnam County farms.

We have arranged an exhibit of the various varieties with the yield comparisons in the Central National Bank exhibit window. There is a very notable difference in appearance of these various varieties and interested farmers will want to compare these figures as well as the general appearance of these different varieties.

Some Common Sense About Mineral Feeds

Your MoorMan Service Man

It's just plain common sense that a mineral feed, balanced with the ingredients hogs need, isn't going to have the balance that'll do my dairy cows the most good!

Yes, sir. That does make sense. It's the reason why MoorMan's make a separate mineral feed for each type of livestock and method of feeding.

And, because MoorMan's Minerals are "tailor-made", they go farther, stock does better, and the minerals cost less. That's why more folks feed MoorMan's than any other mineral feed.

The decision was a vital one as you can see. If diamonds were led first, Mr. Dale's only entry for his club suit would be eliminated. After winning with the ace of diamonds he could knock out the ace of clubs. But when Mrs. Keen was in with the ace of hearts, later, she would have no club to return.

However, Mr. Muzzy decided to lead a heart at trick two. Mrs. Keen won, returned a club and Mr. Dale's club suit was set up while he still had the ace of diamonds. Thus, the contract was down one.

"Lead diamonds before hearts and you make it," said Mr. Heinsite, as if he had brilliantly discovered a deep secret.

"How was I to know which red suit to lead first?" wailed Mr. Muzzy.

"Well, you just have to have a sort of feeling for these things," replied Mr. Heinsite in a superior tone.

Mr. Dale found this a little hard to take. "Heinsite, he said, 'you're always saying a little learning is a dangerous thing. That applies to what you just said. I'll lead hearts first like Muzzy did and still make three no trump."

"It can't be done," stated Mr. Heinsite.

"Yes, it can," replied Mr. Dale. "You can't charge Muzzy with an error for leading a heart at the second trick. His error occurred at the first trick. He should let me hold the trick with the queen of clubs. He can then win the second club and lead either red suit. It makes no difference which. Say he leads a heart. Mrs. Keen will win—but she will have no club to return to knock out Muzzy's last stopper."

"That's just what I was going to say," answered Mr. Heinsite. "The hand's a very good example of a ducking play."

Whereupon he went into a lecture on the subject of ducking. Mr. Muzzy listened carefully—and that led to Mr. Heinsite's downfall in tomorrow's hand.

LOOKING...
... AT LIFE

BY ERICH BRANDEIS

This is the last time—I hope—that I shall burden you with stuff about that house we recently remodeled.

My wife tells me that kind of material bores people stiff, and my wife's wish is my command. But, unfortunately, I am completely isolated from the world at the moment and that gosh darn house with all its complications is about all I can think of.

In the moving, my television set went on the blink and the radio went likewise.

The repair man promised to have both back the next day, but they have not come yet and probably won't for six weeks.

I have notified the post office of my new address, but I suppose that has to be o.k.'d by the Postmaster General—or perhaps by Congressional action. So there has been no mail for days.

The newspaper delivery has not started, so I know neither what is going on in politics nor whether Blondie and Dagwood, and Jiggs and Maggie are still married. My wife is desperate without her comics.

Incidentally, in spite of all the inconveniences, you can't imagine what a relief it is not to be bothered with the world for a few days.

Right now, for instance, I interrupted the writing of this column to watch a big black ant racing across my desk with a dead fly in its mouth.

For the moment that is much more important to me than whether Stalin has annexed another country.

I want to find out where that ant is going, so that we can get rid of the most of the nest and of all the other ants at the same time.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could do that with Stalin?

Just to see where he is going—squirt a good dose of DDT or some Russian-killer into his nest and get rid of all the kit and kaboodle all at once.

But enough of that. I want to enjoy my momentary detachment and not get worldly again.

One thing this adventure has taught me is the importance of unimportant things.

Last night I couldn't find my slippers. Lost amid what seemed hundreds of cartons, suitcases, trunks and boxes.

Nothing in the whole wide world was quite as important as finding my slippers.

If a messenger had rushed up my hillside and informed me that an uncle in Texas (an imaginary uncle) had died and left me an oil well that was gushing a million dollars' worth of oil a minute, I would have said "Go 'way, boy. I am busy trying to find my slippers."

It is just like when I tried to tell a fellow about the heart attack I had four years ago.

He listened with one ear.

And in the midst of my harrowing tale he broke in with "ever tell you what happened ME two years ago?"

Don't ever get too excited about politics, business, and the world in general. The last analysis there is only one thing that counts: "Y-O-U."

SENATOR OLIN JOHNSON, of South Carolina (right) confers on the floor with members of the rebellious Georgia delegation at the Democratic national convention. Georgia and four other southern states refused to accept the loyalty pledge.

RELUCTANT Gov. Adlai Stevenson (top), the man who would rather be governor than presidential nominee, waves to delegates amid a tumultuous greeting at the opening of the Democratic national convention. He urged the party never to "appease nor apologize" for its long reign. Senator Paul Douglas (bottom) of Illinois, mounts the rostrum to "count the house" before the convention is called to order. Douglas is the lone delegate in the Illinois delegation to support Senator Kefauver.
